Stop Leaving Money on the Table.

Every engineered wood flooring job with a staircase is a missed margin opportunity. UWP stocks unfinished solid stair nosing priced per linear foot, pulled from random-length stock — your contractor stains and finishes on-site for a true color match at a fraction of OEM nosing cost.

LENGTHS & ORDERING · SOLD BY THE LINEAR FOOT

LF	3–16 ft	Raw	As-Stocked
SOLD BY	STOCK LENGTHS	SURFACE	NO CUTTING
linear foot	subject to stock	unfinished	to length

Important — lengths are sold as-stocked; UWP does not cut pieces down to order. If a step needs 36", you are billed for the full length pulled from stock. Plan orders around available lengths to minimize waste and keep job costs predictable.

A NOTE ON FINISHING

UWP supplies the profile; your contractor delivers the finish. Stair nosing is supplied unfinished — intentionally. A skilled contractor staining on-site works with the actual installed nosing, under the same lighting, using the same stain lot as the field floor. The result is a blend match calibrated to the real environment, not a factory color applied to a profile that was never in the room.

Industry standard for transition trim is a 70–80% color blend — even OEM pre-finished nosing doesn't guarantee a perfect match. A contractor who knows their craft will meet that standard or better. Set that expectation with your customer from the start.

Your margin control	Thin — OEM sets price	You set the markup

HOW TO POSITION THIS WITH YOUR CUSTOMERS

1. Quote per foot, not per piece. A 16-step staircase at 3–4 ft/step is ~48–64 linear feet. Against $944–$1,424 in OEM nosing, the value is self-evident.
2. Plan lengths before you order. UWP sells as-stocked, 3–16 ft, no cutting to length. Walk through step measurements first and build a waste allowance into your quote.
3. Set the right expectation on finishing. It arrives unfinished — frame on-site staining as the professional advantage over a factory pre-finish from a different run.
4. You control the markup. Pricing is per linear foot — price it at whatever your market supports. The margin stays in your store.
